Who We Are

We are a department composed of experienced academics in the field of language learning and teaching. Our diverse staff specialize in disciplines such as linguistics, translation, cultural studies, and communication. Innovative and technology-enhanced pedagogies, interdisciplinary approaches, field work and a variety of problem based as well as project based learning are utilized in all our courses. We instill real-world skills in our students enabling them to effortlessly enter the job market and compete in the global economy.

Vision

By speaking a common language with the world, we create opportunities, connect cultures and shape a better future for our global community at the regional and international levels.

Mission Statement

Our department is a student-centered, multidisciplinary program which promotes the development of language skills within an intercultural framework that is individually tailored to suit the career aspirations of our students. In addition to the core English language subjects, we offer a variety of pathways for students to choose a wide variety of elective courses. The core subjects of communication, translation, and global and cultural studies in addition to the electives will personalize our students' learning experience to broaden their career opportunities to become capable and engaged global citizens.
